Overwriting the memory holding the IO routine functions is likely to have strange and unpredictable effects on your program. If the data you write does not represent a valid instruction it is likely that you will cause an 'unrecognised instruction exception'. PC will be set to entry in vector table!