

1997 Paper 6 Question 11

Complexity Theory

Suppose you had a conventional sequential computer with a special coprocessor which could multiply two n -bit numbers in time proportional to $\log(n)$, even for very large n . Explain how you would implement a fast integer square root program on this system. Comment on the performance you could expect to achieve.

[20 marks]